

Do you want to learn how to use a mobile phone?

Novita has been successful in receiving funding through Channel 7 Children's Research Foundation to carry out research into training children with physical disabilities to use mobile phones.

This study will be carried out during 2009 and will explore the type of training that works best for children with physical disabilities to independently use mobile phones and/or associated technologies that will enhance social contact.

The study will involve several short interviews and questionnaires and training sessions in the use of mobile phones and then a trial of the mobile phone technology matched to the participant's needs and abilities over a one month period.

We are seeking 20 participants aged 12-18 years to be involved in the study.

To find out more about the study or if you wish to participate, contact Danielle Whitaker, Research Assistant on 8243 8376 or email danielle.whitaker@novita.org.au.
